Let us now turn to a few concrete cases, illustrating the ruthless manner

For instance, how loyal critics maintain that the Union Government is actually itself doing the very thing for which the German Secret Service is willing to pay large sums of money in which an unintelligent, rule of thumb, dangerously dull Militia Department has been placing a high on the production of foodstuffs.

to accomplish. And one has to admit that the lessening or near-destruction of the productivity of Canadian farms—the granaries of the world—has been an important object of German attention ever since the war started. How to accomplish this, has been the power confronting the Kaiser's agents.

It being obviously impossible to blow up our fertile acres with dynamite, the only thing to be done was to have things arranged so that there would be no labor to speak of for the and cramped to the utmost possible limit. The problem was no doubt a most perplexing one for the German agents operating throughout the zone.

By some extraordinary freak of circumstance, the Union Government most obligingly solved the problem for them! Ottawa suddenly cancelled the farmers' exemptions and what Berlin had for so long been striving in vain to do, was done.

The loyal critics of whom we speak claim that this could only have been brought about by German intrigue.

Anyhow, whether these loyal critics be right or wrong, one thing that they can be no doubt about is the fact that the farming class was most beautifully buoyed at the last General Election. It is quite possible that there was no

Of course, as was to be expected, the government has let itself out by turning over the enforcement of the Conservation Act, with all its charming little additions and lean-to's, to the Militia Department. Thus, when the farmers protest to the Govern-

And how, you ask, was the farmer class bunched at the last Election over the Military Service Act? Well now

In the first place, the Military Service Act was based on the principle of selective service. It provided for the conscription of eligible persons of military age.
